Last weekend my best friend and I took a trip to Barcelona. We had the most fantastic time! Although a weekend isn't long enough to spend in this amazing city, we managed to do a lot. The first thing we did was visit the famous Sagrada Familia, one of the best known works of Antoni Gaudí. Although we didn't have much money (we are students!), we paid extra to get the audio guide – it's worth it, as it teaches you a lot about Gaudí. After that we went to another work of Gaudí's – the Park Güell.

It was crowded by that time, so it wasn't very relaxing but we did get really good photos of the area. Because the park is built on top of a hill, there are wonderful views of the city below. Best of all, this park is free!

We also enjoyed walking around the market of La Boqueria, where we bought fresh fruit, vegetables and meat. It's just next to La Rambla and the old town, so we went for a walk there too.

We got lost – but it was a lot of fun! We also went to Barceloneta Beach, but as it was a windy winter's day, I didn't go into the sea for a swim. I couldn't believe there were people swimming! It's still a beautiful beach to visit, but next time, I'll come in summer!
